Explore. Create. Protect

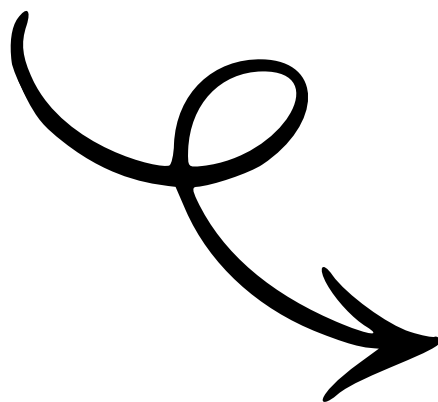

Welcome to the Discovery Den!

At Champions for Wildlife, we believe kids become lifelong conservationists when they are given the chance to explore nature, express creativity, and take action for wildlife.

The Discovery Den is a kid-safe online space designed to help children connect with native wildlife through interactive learning, art, storytelling, and hands-on activities.

Whether your child is curious about animals, loves creating art, or wants to help protect nature, the Discovery Den is designed to guide them through a fun and meaningful journey.

CREATE

A Safe Space for Kids

The Discovery Den is intentionally designed to be a safe, family-friendly environment. Children will not be directed to outside websites that are not directly managed or approved by Champions for Wildlife. The Discovery Den does not include chat features or collect personal information from children. Our goal is to create a trusted space where kids can safely explore wildlife and creativity online, while encouraging experiences that continue off screen in the real world.

We want children to:

1. Notice wildlife in their own communities.
2. Create art inspired by nature
3. Spend time outdoors
4. Grow into confident champions for wildlife.

Helping Your Child Navigate the Journey

The Discovery Den is designed for independent exploration, but is even more impactful when families participate together.

Here are a few ways adults can support the experience:

1. Ask questions about the species your child discovers
2. Try an art activity together
3. Print coloring pages or scavenger hunts for offline fun
4. Encourage outdoor exploration and observation
5. Help children submit artwork or stories to the Kids Art Gallery or Wildlife blog.

Every child engages differently. Some may love learning facts, while others connect most deeply through creativity or action. The Discovery Den is designed to support all of those pathways.
